Valuable Real estate for sale.

PURSUANT to the last Will and Testament of the late Col. RICHARD BROWN, deceased I NOW OFFER FOR SALE,

The Farm on which he resided, on the Ohio River, in Holliday's Cove, in Brooke County, Virginia.

This Estate consists of about 700 Acres of Land, of which is a rich Island, the remainder principally second bottom and upland; that part of the upland which is not tillable, is covered with timber suitable for furnishing the Island and tillage part with fencing and building timber. There are between 150 and 200 acres cleared and under cultivation, a suitable proportion of which in good meadow land. The buildings consist in two good dwelling houses and a log barn with under story of stone. It is well supplied with very fine springs of good water.

The situation of this property on the Ohio River, four miles from the flourishing Town of Steubenville and in the neighbourhood of several Merchant Mills, Iron Works, &c. renders it a desirable object to a person who would wish to farm extensively, as he would probably at all times find a good market at his door for the produce of his farm. A part of the purchase will be required in hand, and for the remainder a reasonable credit will be given.

A grand object for the Enterprising,

WHEREIN a partner is wanted, to improve & occupy one of the most eligible and advantageous Mill-seats in the Western world. It is situated in the Illinois Territory, within six miles of Vincennes, on the great road leading to St. Louis and Kaskaskia, on the river Amberas, which is a stream sufficiently large to afford water to carry on any works that may be thought necessary, at all times—One of the banks of the stream is a permanent rock, rather of the saponaceous kind impervious to water and easily cut or fashioned, as may be required—the bottom of the stream, opposite the mill is all sheeted with the same. The seat lies within one and a half miles of the Wabash river, enjoys all the advantages of the navigation of the same—the circumjacent country is equal to any section in the western country for agriculture, and especially for that staple commodity, WHEAT, as its situation is high and undulating, and of course healthy—the soil of a black loam mixed with sand—the face of the country interspersed with praries of the most agreeable texture, and in fertility second to none, and for the most part surrounded by luxuriant wood-lands, and as we may say it is yet almost in a state of nature, and affords a most advantageous range for cattle, hogs, etc. A number of families have lately settled in the vicinity, and shortly we look for a flourishing settlement there. Nature has been exuberant at the seat, as there is scarce any advantage that the enterprising partizan might almost wish or expect that is not to be found there. Take into view the manufacturing of flower largely for foreign markets—a complete seat for a boat and ship yard, also, for a brewery, distillery, and tanyard. and a well equiped tavern is much wanted at present to accommodate the road, and for which it is an excellent stand—there are many other advantages that will appear by taking a view of the premises. There is an excellent saw-mill now going, on the spot.

My primary object is to have erected and equiped a merchant mill with not less than three pair of stones. I will furnish the seat upon equitable terms.

It is hoped none will offer that are not of good standing in society, men of enterprize, and possessed of such funds as will enable them to carry on largely. A trio partnership would be preferred, as there is a great field for enterprize.

I also wish to sell the plantation I now live on, it contains 400 acres, 80 of which is under high cultivation, the fertility of which is second to none, has on it an excellent never failing spring, well calculated for a brewery or distillery as it has a great fall, situated within 3 miles of Vincennes, the subscriber who lives on the premises would think himself honored by any gentleman's calling who might have an eye to either of the objects & would take pleasure in shewing the same.

THE CONTRAST.

It has frequently been a subject of remark, (says the Albany Adtr.) that while the tried patriots of the revolution, the founders of our independence and of the constitution, who filled the highest offices in the gift of the nation, during the administrations of Washington and Adams, amassed no fortunes, or accumulated no property while in office, their successors from comparative insignificance, have arison to the highest rank of wealth and opulence. This circumstance was brought forcibly to our mind the other day by the perusal of a letter received by a gentleman of this city, from the honorable Timothy Pickering; in which, as an apology for not writing more, he observes.—"From the opening of spring, to the close of autumn, I am laboriously employed in cultivating my little farm."—What a striking contrast does the above extract afford between the situation and circumstances of the venerable patriot, Pickering, and the thousands of upstarts who have succeeded by cunning and fraud, in obtaining places of honor and profit in our government. The veteran patriot, Timothy Pickering, has devoted the best part of a life of 72 years, to the service of his country. He commenced his public career at the beginning of the revolution, by the side of Washington, who never once suspected his patriotism, his fidelity, or his courage. After the revolution, he held the important offices of Post Master-General, Secretary of War, & Secretary of State, in regular succession.—Since which time, he has been 8 years a Senator in Congress, and subsequently a representative for several years. He entered the public service possessed of a little farm; and he retired with no more. Many of our modern Patriots that might be named have entered the service as poor as Timothy Pickering. Mr. Pickering, after a long life, religiously devoted to his country, has retired, with his own hands, to cultivate, for the remainder of his days, "his little farm." But is it so with his successors? No! We find that since the dismissal of the patriots of the revolution from office, their successors, many of whom had neither talents nor character to recommend them, have suddenly arisen to princely wealth,—building houses—riding in their coaches, with an expensive livery at their heels, and have become the lords of manors. While—mark this reader!—Timothy Pickering, who has devoted half a century to the public employment—in stations the most conspicuous, the most trying, the most responsible—is now, like a Cincinnatus, cultivating WITH HIS OWN HANDS, "his little farm!"—Yet this is the man against whom Envy, and Avarice, jealous pride, and low ambition, and all the dark and deadly passions—have combined to denounce, to vilify, and to slander. This is the man who has been denounced as a Tory, a Traitor and a Villain. —Say, my Countrymen, WHO IS THE HONEST MAN?

The public conduct of James Monroe, previous to the year 1814 was generally on the side of the Jeffersonian and Madisonian politics. These politics were thought by the federalists, hostile, nay ruinous, in their tendency to our country; and in attempting to make this appear to the people the public conduct of Mr. Monroe, with that of many others, was brought forward, examined, and condemned. Who but some squint-eyed democrat that perceives moral treason in every word, and political felony in every action of a federalist—can see any thing that is not honest and patriotic in this?—No one surely. And yet the federalists were called by their opponents, every vile and rancorous name which the dictionary could furnish, for this very conduct. Why was this? For no other reason than that the success of federal principles implied the destruction of the democratic party—and the return of honest men to office; it was therefore necessary to condemn federalism right or wrong. On this principle, democratic partizans have ever acted, and to this day, when James Monroe and many others of his party, have abandoned their Jeffersonian politics and adopted federal measures, and thereby testified their conviction of the excellence of the course pointed out by the federalists, still there are many democrats who keep up the blackguard cry of 'John Henry' 'Blue lights' and 'Hartford Convention!' So inveterate indeed are they in their habits of reviling federalists, 'right or wrong,' that even when federalists commend their 'beloved James Monroe,' for being the first king of the 'Virginian line' that has ventured to step out of the Jeffersonian track into the wiser paths of Washington, they pour forth upon them the same shower of condemnation and virulence.

Who then can but despise democratic revilings. [Con. Cour.

From the Belfast News Letter.

JEAN GORDON.

We copy the following from an interesting article entitled "Scottish Gypsies" which appears in No. 1 of the "Edinburgh Monthly Magazine," just published:

"My father remembered old Jean Gordon, of Yetholm, who had great sway among her tribe. She was quite a Meg Merrilies, and possessed the savage virtue of fidelity in the same perfection. Having been often hospitably received at the farm house of Lochside, near Yetholm, she had carefully abstained from committing any depredations on the farmer's property.—But her sons (nine in number) had not, it seems, the same delicacy, and stole a brood sow from their kind entertainer. Jean was so much mortified at this ungrateful conduct, and so much ashamed of it, that she absented herself from Lochside for several years. At length, in consequence of some temporary pecuniary necessity, the good man of Lochside was obliged to go to Newcastle to get some money to pay his rent—Returning thro' the mountains of Cheviot, he was benighted and lost his way.—A light glimmering through the window of a large waste barn, which had survived the farm house, to which it had once belonged, guided him to a place of shelter;—and, when he knocked at the door, it was opened by Jean Gordon. Her very remarkable figure for she was nearly six feet high, and her equally remarkable features and dress, rendered it impossible to mistake her for a moment; and to meet with such a character in so solitary a place, & probably at no great distance from her clan, was a terrible surprise to the poor man, whose rent (to lose which would have been ruin to him) was about his person.

Jean set up a loud shout of joyful recognition—Ah, sir? the winsome gudeman of Lochside? Light down, light down; for ye manna gang farther the night, and a friend's house sae near. The farmer was obliged to dismount, and accept of the gypsey's offer of supper and a bed. There was plenty of meat in the barn, however, it might be come by, and preparations were going on for a plentiful supper, which the farmer, to the great increase of his anxiety, observed was calculated for ten or twelve guests, of the same description no doubt with his landlady.

"Jean left him in no doubt on the subject.—She brought up the story of the stolen sow, and noticed how much pain and vexation it had given her.—Like other philosophers, she remarked that the world grows worse daily; and like other parents, that the bairns got out of her guiding, and neglected the old gypsey regulations, which commanded them to respect, in their depredations, the property of their benefactors. The end of all this was an inquiry of what money the farmer had about him, and an urgent request that he would make her his purse keeper as the bairns, as she called her sons would soon be home. The poor farmer made a virtue of necessity, told his story and surrendered his gold to Jean's custody. She made him put a few shillings in his pocket, observing it would excite suspicion if he should be found travelling altogether pennyless. This arrangement being made the farmer lay down on a sort of shake down as the Scotch call it, upon some straw, but as will easily be believed slept not.

"About midnight the gang returned with various articles of plunder, and talking over their exploits in language which made the farmer tremble. They were not long in discovering their guest, and demanded of Jean whom she had got there. 'E'en the winsome gudeman, of Lochside poor body,' replied Jean," he's been at Newcastle seeking for siller to pay his rent, honest man, but deil-be-lickit he's been able to gather in, and sae he's gaun e'en hame wi' a toom purse and a sair heart."—"That may be Jean," replied one of the banditti, "but we maun ripe his pouches a bit, and see if it be true or no." Jean set up her throat in exclamations against this breach of hospitality, but without producing any change of their determination. The farmer soon heard their stifled whispers and light steps by his bed side, and understood they were rumaging his clothes. When they found the money which the providence of Jean Gordon had made him retain, they held a consultation if they should take it or no, but the smallness of the booty, and the vehemence of Jean's remonstrances determined them in the negative. They caroused and went to rest.—Soon as day dawned, Jean roused her guest produced his horse, which she had accommodated behind the hallan, and guiding him for some miles till he was on the high road to Lochside. She then restored his whole property, nor could his earnest entreaties prevail on her to accept so much as a single guinea.

"I have heard the old people at Jedburgh say, that all Jean's sons were condemned to die there on the same day. It is said the Jury were equally divided, but that a friend to justice, who had slept during the whole discussion waked suddenly and gave his vote for condemnation, in the emphatick words, 'Hang them a.' Jean was present and only said, "Lord help the innocent in a day like this!" Her own death was accomplished with circumstances of a brutal outrage, of which poor Jean was in many respects wholly undeserving. Jean had among other demerits or merits, as you may choose to rank it that of being a stanch Jacobite. She chanced to be at Carlisle upon a fair, or market day, soon after the year 1746, where she gave vent to her political partiality, to the great offence of the rabble of that city. Being zealous in their loyalty when there was no danger, in proportion to the tameness with which they had surrendered to the Highlanders in 1745, they inflicted on poor Jane Gordon no slighter penalty than that of ducking her to death in the Eden. It was an operation of some time, for Jean was a stout woman, and struggling with her murderers, often got her head above water; and while she had voice left, continued to exclaim at intervals, "Charlie yet! Charlie yet!"—When a child, and among the scenes which she frequented, I have often heard these stories, and cried piteously for poor Jean Gordon.

From the Independent Balance.

MEMORANDA OF THE LATE WAR.

MASTER ENOCH was an adept in the science of roguery; nor were his talents restricted to one particular branch, but embraced all, even with their most distant ramifications. In 1814, when the main body of the northern army was on its march from Plattsburgh, with the ostensible view of effecting a junction with Gen. Brown's division, then on the Niagara gathering laurels every day from the brows of the recent victors, "the conquerors of Europe," one evening, near Johnstown, in New-York, master Enoch reconnoitered a farm-yard near the place of encampment, and perceived a fine detachment of flutterers [poultry.] He quickly resolved to capture them as soon as he could make his advances with safety, under cover of the night. But we may easily judge of Enoch's consternation, when he reached the spot on which he expected to make so many prisoners, to find that some other daring spirit had anticipated his plans and borne off the flutterers. Attached to the same brigade was an elder regiment than that which had the honor of mustering Enoch on its rolls, some of whose men boasted themselves "the oldest soldiers in that army." Enoch appears to have been also endowed in a great degree with the powers of divination; for no sooner did he discover that some rival spirit had stolen a march on him, than he immediately guessed (for he was a legitimate Bay state man) the regiment, company, nay, the very mess in which his fowls were. The result proved that he had guessed aright; for when the men began to cook on the next evening, he saw his two successful rivals preparing a repast from the fowls to which he felt a prior claim. He resolved to enjoy the supper they were cooking. Having accurately observed their camp kettle, he procured another of the like dimensions, with a cover nearly similar; he changed caps with a man of the 45th regiment, which had been raised in New-Hampshire and Maine, re-adopted his eastern nasal twang, and repaired to the fire, on which he placed his kettle, close to the other. after some time an inquiry took place of "who owns the second kettle?" None immediately answering, the men were on the point of upsetting it, when Enoch stepped forward and put in his claim, alledging that as his mess had no wood to kindle a fire, he hoped they would not deny a brother soldier the privilege of cooking it at theirs. Some division of opinion was excited by this appeal; but the adverse party, being the most numerous, were proceeding to capsize Mr. Enoch's kettle, when he, by a dexterous movement, which was not perceived by his opponents, contrived to change its position, or, in a more military phrase, he made them to change wings. The fire at length grew too hot for Enoch, and bitterly deprecating their "hard-heartedness to a fellow soldier," he took one of the kettles and left the fire. After having indulged in a hearty laugh at having driven away the supposed "raw Jonathan," the cook was directed to try whether the fowls were not almost done; but to his unutterable confusion, found that the kettle contained nothing but water.

LOCK! before you LEAP!

TRESPASSING, marauding and pilfering having become so prevalent in the neighbourhood of Pittsburgh, we have considered it a bounden duty to protect our property from such Violators of both the laws and constitution of our country. And any person who may in future be detected either in trespassing on our property and enclosures, plundering, or pilfering and destroying of what is ours, and not theirs, may rest assured, that without any exception of persons they will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law provided against such offenders. The foolish and inconsiderate, depend on their heels nocturnal address and unknown faces; but they may reflect that good dogs, and guns of sure fire, may bring them to justice—This notice will be considered in its true spirit, and not to cut ourselves off from the intercourse of our friends, or the society which we shall always be happy in seeing at our houses, by the highway thereto.

PITTSBURGH.

JOHN DARRAGH, Chairman.
Attest, WM. B. FOSTER, Secy.
Pittsburgh, August 23, 1817.

We understand (says the N. York Advertiser of August 15) that the brave, accomplished, but unfortunate Gen. COUNT LAVALETTE, arrived at this port yesterday from Europe. Our readers will recollect that this gentleman was rescued from prison in Paris, by the ingenuity of his wife, aided by the noble generosity of two or three gentlemen, viz. Bruce, Hutchinson, &c.

Unparallelled Sailing.—The ship Pacific capt. John Williams, on her recent passage from this port to Liverpool, arrived on the coast of Ireland in twelve days and a half from New-York. It is an average of 216 miles per day; and it is probably the first time that the Atlantic Ocean has ever been crossed from those points in so short a period. During nine of those days she sailed at the rate of 245 miles per day!

N. Y. Spec.

THE NAVY.

Two of the commissioners of the Navy (commodore Rodgers and commodore Decatur) are now absent, at New York, to make arrangements for the construction of a line of battle ship and two frigates, the frames and other materials for which are now collecting there. Similar arrangements, it is expected will be made by them at Portsmouth, Boston, and Philadelphia, before their return, at each of which places a line of battle ship and a frigate is to be constructed——the line of battle ship at this navy yard, is progressing rapidly; the materials for a frigate are collecting, and the 74 at Norfolk has been commenced. It is confidently believed that the new ships of the line will carry their guns higher than the Independence, Washington and Franklin.

Frames of line of battle ships and frigates are cutting in Georgia and Louisiana. Liberal encouragement has been given to men of capital and enterprize to engage in this business, and when we compare the number and perfect condition of our ships now in existence, with the decayed state of the ships of other nations, and recollect the ease and expedition, with which we can build and equip fleets, independently of other considerations, we may justly rank ourselves among the first naval powers.

There are strong reasons for believing, that the nine ships of the line, twelve frigates, and three steam batteries, authorised by law, will be completed for a less sum than the eight millions appropriated for the gradual increase of the navy. Our navy will then consist of twelve ships of the line, and nineteen frigates, eight sloops of war, four steam batteries, and a proportionate number of small vessels, independently of the fleets on the lakes.

We have now in commission three ships of the line, three frigates, seven sloops of war, and a number of small vessels, employed in surveying our coast and other services. Nat. Intell.

CHINESE HUMOUR.

In the late English negociation, with the Chinese monarch, of which lord Amherst was the envoy, it appears that the whole plan was defeated because his lordship refused to present himself on his knees, and bang his head nine times on the ground, in token of his submission. If the English ministry had chosen a two year old Ram, instead of his Lordship, as an envoy, he would have accomodated the Chinese monarch, with a quantum sufficit of bangs from an head nearly as hard as his own. Tel.

FRESHET.

[From the Baltimore Telegragh, Aug. 11.]

We expect that our paper will, for a long time hence, be considered as a funeral record of the damages done by the late inundation. In addition to the injuries stated in our last, we are now compelled to state, that one of the stone bridges over Hartford Run, is nearly demolished, another, erected by Mr. Smith, on the Washington road, is rendered impassible; another over Gunpowder Falls, on the Philadelphia road, has been sewpt away. A saw and plaster mill, at the last mentioned place, owned by Mr. Patterson, together with two hundred barrels of flour, have been borne away by the inundation; and besides, several bridges on the Philadelphia road have shared the same fate. Market street bridge is the only one remaining uninjured in Baltimore.

In addition to the damages that have already been mentioned, we have to record another, the report of which has just reached us. We hear, that on the farm of Joseph Cowman, situated at the head of south River, a tornado passed, on Saturday last, about 12 o'clock, the day on which we suffered so much by the inundation. The furious whirlwind, as it is stated, razed every building on the farm level with the ground. We hear, that one of the daughters of Mr. Cowman was instantly killed, a beautiful girl, about 15 years of age—and that another daughter, and one of the sons of that gentleman were severely injured. What borders on the marvellous, is, that the unfortunate young lady who fell a victim to the tempest, was suspended in the whirlwind, from whence she was rescued by her brother, who caught her by the foot while hanging in the air. At the same instant of time while she was thus rescued from the whirlwind, she was smote by a beam, driven by the violence of the wind from a neighboring tobacco ware house, which put a period to her existence. Her brother was likewise severely injnred by the fall of the beam.

All the Bridges between Baltimore and York, have been swept away: and from the intelligence gathered, as our informants came along. It appears that a number of Mills on the different streams have been carried off.—American.

"Uncle Sam."—This expression which originated during the war, from the initials 'U. S.' on the soldiers' knapsacks, has come into general use. The Indians at the west, from hearing it often used, have imbibed the idea that is actually the name of the President: and while at Sackett's Harbour a considerable number of Indians and Squaws, crowded around the president, wishing, as they expressed it, "to shake hands with UNCLE SAM."

A Piratical chief, named Catramatto, a native of the Ionian Isles, has been put to death at Constantinople, in consequence of the piracies he had committed. The English Ministers demanded his being delivered up in order to his punishment, but in vain. There has been, it is said, on this occasion, prolonged discussions between the Porte and the English Envoy.

Neat Remarker.—There is no such time (says the Petersburgh Intelligencer) in a philosophical point of view, as that described by the word now. Even while we pronounce the word, and (rapid as thought is) while we conceive the idea of the present, the present is the past.

APPROVED Patent and Family MEDICINES, FOR SALE BY J. W. SKELTON,

Pittsburgh Apothecary Hall,
Corner of Third and Wood streets
AND SKELTON AND HILL,
Market street, near the Diamond,
PITTSBURGH.

Doctor Bossy's Celebrated Elixir of Health.

A medicine, possessing extraordinary powers in arresting the progress, and effectually curing consumption, with all its train of distressing symptoms—a disease which from its frequency, and difficulty of cure within the last three or four years, seems to threaten destruction to a great portion of our population. The author of this medicine is an aged german physician, of great celebrity and acknowledged talents, (residing in the city of London) whose wonderful success in the cure of consumption, has sounded forth his name to the utmost extent of Great Britain.

It is hoped and expected so great a blessing will not long remain untried by the inhabitants of America, whose diseased lungs, with teazing cough, loss of appetite, decay of strength, loss of flesh, pain in the chest, and depression of spirits, warns them of approaching dissolution.

DELAYS ARE DANGEROUS.

Not to try the means which Providence has placed within our reach, is little less than being our own executioners. It is therefore the duty of every afflicted mortal to seek a remedy in time.

While there is life there is hope!
To-morrow may come too late!!

Dr. Bossy's Hysteric Drops.

A medicine, which has been for many years used with great success, both in Europe and America, speedily removing the most violent fits of Hysterics, like a charm.

Dr. Bossy's Lotion, For burns and scalds.

Slight burns and scalds, if taken immediately will in general be cured by this Liniment. In case of a fever intervening, Epsom salts taken in small quantities, will assist the cure

When the mischief is extensive or deep, mortification may be apprehended, whether the subject be young or old; the advice therefore of a skilful physician or surgeon, should be procured without delay.

Dr. Bossy's Embrocation,

For bruises, strains, inflammations, rheumatism, &c.

A medicine in every respect superior to the common Steer's Opodeldoc, (so universally used) No medicine ever sold has a greater claim on the public than the one now offered; it being a useful external application for sprains, bruises, childblains, and for dispersing inflammatory tumours, rheumatism, burns scalds, &c.

Dr. Bossy's India Oil,

For the cure of cancers, wens, and all stubborn tumours, &c.

This celebrated Oil, the production of the East Indies, was first discovered by that great, and much celebrated physician of the East Indies, Foi Chi, whose great medical information, has reached the most remote parts of Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Russia, and the United States.

Thousands of empyrics and quacks, are daily offering to the world the most deadly poisons, such as Arsenic, muriate of Mercury, Licuta, &c. in the form of plaisters, Tinctures, Solutions, Pills, &c. thereby destroying the lives of hundreds and thousands of the community.

Infallible Remedy

For destroying Bugs in bedsteads, furniture &c.

This mixture will infallibly destroy them and their nits, though they swarm ever so much. It is necessary that the bed or furniture should be thoroughly wet with it, the dust being first shaken off, which will prevent the mixture staining in the least, or soiling even the richest silks, &c. Should any bugs appear after once using this mixture it will be only owing to not having well wetted the linen &c. of the bed with it. So that those parts being well wetted with the liquid, which dries as fast as it is used, and pouring in the joints and holes, where the sponge or brush cannot reach, they never fail of being all destroyed

N. B. It is necessary that the mixture should be well shaken together before it is used.

Doctor Velnos'

TURKISH GLUE or ARMENIAN CEMENT,
For mending China, glass, &c.

A discovery of first magnitude in domestic economy, Thousands of articles, many of the most useful are daily committed to the street &c for the want of some suitable Cement, to mend them. The one now offered has proved by experience, to answer the purpose, and will even join glass or china, so strong that it will often break in a fresh place.

Balsamic Aromatic Tincture,

Or the grand corrector of flatulence and acidity in the bowels of children.

A medicine so well calculated to relieve the bowel complaint of infant children, (as it is so emphatically called by nurses) that it needs only the trial of a single bottle, to recommend it to the attention of a family.

To alleviate the sufferings of infant children, has called forth the talents of the most eminent physicians of every age, and the want of success appears chiefly to arise from the deeply rooted prejudices of parents and nurses, which the healing art has had to contend with. In this enlightened age much has been done towards banishing ancient prejudices, and we now find children taking food and physic, on much more rational principles than formerly. It is a fact clearly ascertained, that most of the diseases incident to children, do arise from bad management, want of cleanliness, and indigestible food

The medicine here recommended is known to the physicians, for correcting acidity, promoting the digestive powers, warming and invigorating the stomach, and giving immediate ease in the mot excruciating pains of the bowels.

The dose to a child a month old is sixty drops—three months old, eighty drops—six months old a tea spoonfull; after which, thirty drops may be added for every year of their age.

The mixture to be well shaken, and mixed with barley water, balm or mint tea, or cold water, and repeated every sixth hour till ease is procured.

Velno's Vegetable Ointment,

For the cure of the Rheumatism

Perhaps no country in the world is so subject to Rheumatism, as the United States of America. The most learned of the medical faculty, has not before been able to produce a medicine which would with certainty cure this dreadful scourge of mankind. Thousands of victims are at this day labouring under the most excruciating pain, from different and lasting attacks of this most formidable disease.

Doctor Velnos is happy in informing the citizens of the United States of America, that after laborious study and practice of forty years, he has at length found out a medicine, which will infallibly cure the Rheumatism in every stage; and strongly recommends to all who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with the disease, to give this valuable medicine a trial: being composed of the most innocent vegetables, the young, the old, the aged and infirm may use it with the most perfect safety, and may rely with confidence on a perfect cure, if within the reach of medicine.

Since Doctor Velnos first discovered this very valuable vegetable Ointment, thousands have been cured; many who had not the use of their limbs for many years before.

Dr. Hartman's Worm Cakes.

This is a mild and exceeding good vermifuge may be given at all times with the greatest safety to the youngest infant, or pregnant women.
